It usually took three days to complete the round trip. Mr. Johonnott is the oldest man to have quarried stone from the Barre quarries. He operated on a small scale in 1857 on the Ben Thompson farm, the estate being in his charge as administrator. The granite obtained from practically the ground's surface was used for underginning and the regular price paid was 22 cents a runfoot for a block slightly over two feet high and eight to ten inches thick. The Thompson farm comprised 172 acres of land and included that territory which now boasts the Wetmore & Morse and other big quarries. In order to settle the estate in 1857 after value trying for four years to sell the farm for a paltry $2,600, Mr. Johonnott divided the farm into five parts to distribute among the heirs. farm was fairly fertile, but it was evidently not desired by many because of the rocky condition of the land. honnort Tuesday visited the Capitol Savings bank, of which he is a director.
